“ I,ll never forget when he used his grandmothers car and didn,t put any gas in it before he took it back to her. I picked him up and we went back to my house for awhile. Later we were going to byhalia to big star when we saw his grandmothers car parked at the furniture store that used be across the street from the brick factory. We went in to see if she was there and was told she had ran out of gas. Charles said oh no! He said where is she and he was told a man had taken her to get some gas. He said lets go before she gets back. Just as we were getting in my truck, they came pulling up. I stayed in the truck as he went back to help put the gas in the car. I laughed hard because i could she was holding her fist up and shaking it at him. Man it was so funny. He was a great guy and one of the best friends i,ve ever had. I miss him and his sense of humor.
